Introduction

WestEd collaborated with the Colorado Association of Charter School Authorizers (CACSA) to develop the Charter School Renewal Package. CACSA promotes best practices in charter school authorizing and supports Colorado charter school authorizers to develop, adopt, and implement practices that improve results for all students. This package is intended to support authorizer staff to successfully execute charter school renewals by providing guidance, best practices, and other resources from authorizers in the state grounded in Colorado’s Standards for Charter Schools and Charter School Authorizers.

The themes highlighted in the package include

- practicing equitable renewal practices that prioritize schools’ performance, their progress meeting charter goals, and ability to meet student needs;
- empowering authorizers to collaborate with schools on changes that address schools’ shortcomings — during renewals in general and in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic; and
- supporting high-stakes decision-making that is evidence-based and in the best interests of students and communities.

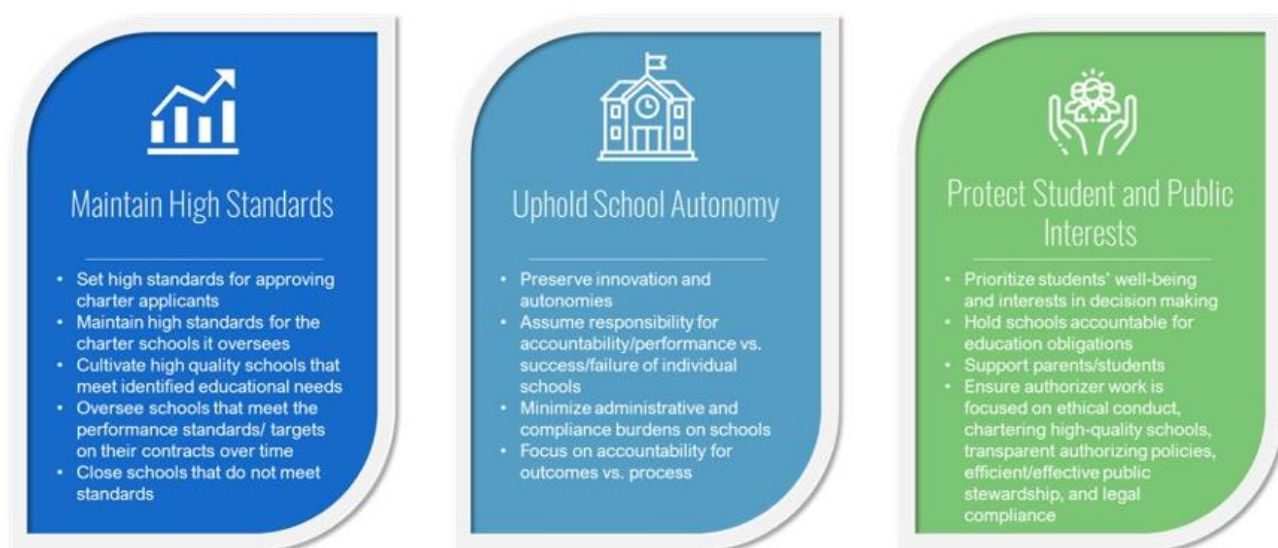

The package begins with the Colorado Department of Education’s (CDE) Standards for Charter Schools and Charter School Authorizers which, along with Colorado’s Charter School Act, are the guiding foundations for this resource and are revisited throughout. Next, the package articulates each stage of the renewal process, providing templates and guidance for each step. The descriptions of these steps incorporate statutory requirements and are based on a review of Colorado authorizers’ guidance documents. Best and promising practices examples are also noted throughout the package, including examples from authorizers within the state and best practice examples from the National Association of Charter School Authorizers (NACSA).

The purposes of the renewal process are to ensure the school is complying with its charter and meeting statutory requirements, performing in the key areas of academics and governance, and is effectively serving all students. Another key purpose is to support schools in a process of continuous improvement. While the state’s law establishes minimum thresholds for the renewal process, authorizers are encouraged to use best practices to promote equitable decision-making and support continuous improvement. Authorizers are also encouraged to consult their district’s charter policy.

Colorado Standards for Charter School Authorizers

The CDE’s Standards for Charter Schools and Charter School Authorizers (“Colorado Standards for Charter Authorizers”) — promulgated by the State Board of Education (SBE) — align with the NACSA’s Principles & Standards for Quality Charter School Authorizing.¹ Figure 1 illustrates and summarizes the Colorado Standards by each main theme: (1) maintaining high standards for schools, (2) upholding school autonomy, and (3) protecting student and public interests. (See Appendix, Exhibit 2 for more information.)

Principles for Equitable Charter School Renewals

Four key principles emerge from Colorado’s standards that promote equitable, student-focused renewal processes — transparency, engagement, flexibility, and continuous improvement (Figure 2). Transparency ensures that at the outset, the renewal process and evaluation standards are clear to all participants (i.e., school, authorizing staff, and district board). Engagement between all relevant participants supports open and ongoing communication and a shared understanding of expectations. Flexibility is important at all times given the challenging yet critical work that schools do every day. This principle is acutely relevant in the current environment as everyone continues to grapple with the impact of the pandemic on education, including addressing students’ physical and emotional health needs and evaluating student performance with limited, valid assessment data. Ideally, while all schools engage in their own reflection and continuous improvement processes, including those required by the state, authorizers should support and require specific improvements² for schools that are not meeting performance expectations as part of the renewal process. For these schools, authorizers and schools should work to identify areas of concern and strategize about how to increase school quality and student performance on an ongoing basis. Authorizer direction for improvement can also address specific issues in noncompliance or problematic operations that are not severe enough to warrant the nonrenewal of the school yet remain as high-priority problems that the authorizer needs to see effectively addressed by the school, for example, special education operations, governance, an Office of Civil Rights complaint, an outstanding safety issue, etc.

² Some authorizers may use the Unified Improvement Planning (UIP) process as a way to integrate the state’s model for continuous improvement with the authorizer’s improvement processes.

Overview of Renewal Process

The next sections of the renewal package describe the required procedures and timelines for the renewal process, the key players and their roles in the process, and the stages of the renewal process. Sample templates are included in the Appendix, and Figure 3 illustrates each stage of the renewal process.

Procedures and Timelines

The Charter Schools Act (CSA) requires that authorizers adopt and maintain charter renewal process procedures and timelines and communicate any updates to the charter schools they authorize.³ These procedures must ensure that

- when feasible and in the “best interests” of the students enrolled at the school, that charter schools operate until the end of the school year before closing; and,
- in the event it is necessary to close a charter school before the end of the year, the authorizer must collaborate with the school to (1) determine the appropriate closure date and (2) ensure the school meets its financial, legal, and reporting responsibilities before the school concludes operations.⁴

Renewal applications are due by December 1st of the year before the school’s charter expires and district boards must vote on renewal applications by February 1st of the year in which the school’s contract expires (the parties can mutually agree to extend the latter deadline). State law also affords flexibility for authorizers to establish additional timelines within the legal timeline, and for authorizers and schools to mutually agree to extend the timelines for the following activities: (1) when the district board makes its renewal decision and (2) negotiating the renewal contract. Figure 4 — which correlates with the Renewal Process Overview above — illustrates proposed renewal timelines for the renewal process.

Setting the Stage for a Successful Renewal Process

Key Players: Roles and Responsibilities

Understanding the roles and responsibilities for each party engaged in renewals is critical to ensuring decision-making is equitable, transparent, and student-focused. The table below articulates the roles and responsibilities of the key players in the renewal process.

Key Players: Roles and Responsibilities in the Renewal Process

Authorizer Staff	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Define and communicate the renewal process to schools and other stakeholders • Create evaluation components, standards, and templates for the renewal process • Communicate with the school about the renewal process, including a kick-off call and ongoing check-ins with school leadership • Review and evaluate the body of evidence, including the renewal application • Provide the district board or district superintendent with the recommendation and renewal report • Negotiate the renewal contract with the governing board of the school
DACs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In some districts, the District Accountability Committee (DAC) reviews and evaluates the body of evidence, including the renewal application
District Superintendent	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ensure adherence to district policy • Review authorizing staff findings and recommendation • Present findings and recommendation to district board (as applicable)
Charter School Leader(s)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Participate in the kick-off call and renewal check-ins • Schedule the site visit with authorizer staff and oversee the visit itself • Complete the renewal application and collect the body of evidence document submissions • Keep the governing board apprised at each stage of the renewal • Negotiate the renewal contract with the governing board and authorizer staff
Charter School Governing Board	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Review the renewal application and body of evidence with leadership before submitting it to authorizer staff • Provide guidance throughout the renewal process • Conduct board meeting during the site visit for authorizer staff to observe
District Board	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Review authorizer staff recommendation and renewal package materials • Make a renewal decision at a scheduled hearing • Vote to adopt the renewal contract

NACSA Best Practice

A quality authorizer “defines and communicates to schools the process, methods, and timing of gathering and reporting school performance and compliance data.”⁵

Training and Development

It is helpful for authorizing staff to provide training to critical stakeholders on the renewal process so they are clear about what to expect and when to expect it and understand their role in the renewal process. Authorizing staff should provide training to charter schools (school leaders and governing board members) that will undergo renewal in the next year; DACs if they play a role in the renewal process; district boards; and any district offices that will be involved in the renewal process. Training for all stakeholders should provide an overview of the renewal process and then should focus specifically on the responsibilities of that stakeholder.

Stakeholder Groups	Training Topics
School	Renewal process, renewal application, required data and documents for the body of evidence, renewal decision-making, renewal contract and conditions
DAC	Renewal process, renewal application, required data and documents for the body of evidence, renewal decision-making, renewal contract and conditions
District Board	Renewal process, overview of body of evidence, renewal decision-making, renewal contract and conditions
District Offices	Renewal process, relevant areas of the renewal application and body of evidence

Annual Review and Ongoing Oversight Processes

Authorizers are required by law to annually review a school’s performance throughout the charter term, and these reviews are one component of the body of evidence used to assess a school during renewal.⁶ Therefore, it is critical to have a process for formal, annual reviews, which are typically guided by an annual report template. CACSA’s annual report template is included in the Appendix, Exhibit 5, as one example of how to approach the annual review process. In addition, authorizing staff should have a system for ongoing monitoring, oversight, and documenting these findings on a regular basis. Charter governing boards should also track the annual report throughout the charter term and determine or advise the school’s course of action before renewal. The body of evidence and renewal application sections provide examples of the types of data authorizing staff should monitor and collect during annual reviews and ongoing monitoring processes.

⁵ NACSA, Principles & Standards for Quality Charter School Authorizing, 2018 Edition. Available at <https://www.qualitycharters.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/10/NACSA-Principles-and-Standards-2018-Edition.pdf>, p. 17

Kickoff and Communication

Renewal Communications

Ongoing, two-way communication between the authorizer and the school throughout the school year is essential to the continuity of the initial charter contract and the effective continuous improvement cycles during a charter’s term. Authorizing staff should try to build an open relationship with the school leader, creating a comfortable environment for the leader to discuss challenges and share feedback with the authorizer.

The renewal process should begin with a kickoff meeting between the authorizing staff, the governing board chair, and the school leader. We recommend the kickoff meeting take place at least nine months before the renewal resolution is due. At the kickoff meeting, the authorizing staff should explain the renewal process and the expectations for the school, articulate the timeline, and explain what documents and data the school will need to provide. At this meeting, the team should also schedule the renewal site visit and provide a brief overview of what will occur on the day of the site visit. This meeting should provide an opportunity for the school leadership to ask questions about the renewal process and to ensure that all three parties are clear about expectations and timelines.

At the kickoff meeting, the authorizing staff should also schedule regular check-ins with the school leadership throughout the renewal process. The check-ins provide an opportunity for both parties to discuss due dates, document submissions, and questions that may arise throughout the renewal process. These conversations should also focus on communicating the authorizer’s expectations and the school’s performance to date and then identifying areas of concern that may become conditions in the renewal contract, collaborative problem-solving, and prioritizing students’ needs.

NACSA Best Practice

Quality authorizers require schools seeking renewal to apply through a renewal application, “which provides the school a meaningful opportunity and reasonable time to respond to the cumulative report; to correct the record, if needed; and to present additional evidence regarding its performance.”⁷

Body of Evidence

The body of evidence is the information that an authorizer uses to assess school performance during the course of a contract to inform the renewal decision. State law and SBE rules require authorizers to “define clear, measurable, and attainable academic, financial, and operational performance standards and targets”⁸ for schools to be renewed. They must also “define the sources of data that will form the evidence base for ongoing and renewal evaluation.”⁹ Authorizers typically define these standards in a policy document that they post on their website. The standards may be organized into evaluation components or categories, creating a framework for organizing the body of evidence.

The body of evidence typically includes annual reports, notices of concern or breach over the course of a contract, monitoring data and document submission, financial audits, and site visit data. Other data that may be included in the body of evidence are the school’s Unified Improvement Plan (UIP) and accreditation status.

CACSA’s annual report template and evaluation components provide examples of a way to organize a body of evidence and are the foundation for the renewal templates included in this package (Appendix, Exhibit 5). CACSA’s annual report includes four evaluation components: (1) academic performance, (2) board governance, (3) legal and contractual compliance, and (4), financial performance. The figure below illustrates sample evaluation components as well as sources of data for the body of evidence.

In Practice: Body of Evidence

Charter School Institute’s Annual Review of Schools (CARS) System guides their renewal process. The CARS system — based on CSI’s academic, financial, and organizational frameworks — is a tool used to annually evaluate and accredit schools. These reviews contribute to the body of evidence for renewals.

Body of Evidence: Students with Disabilities and English Learners

Authorizers are responsible for ensuring that charter schools serve all students effectively, including students with disabilities and English learners. During the renewal process, authorizing staff should review how students with disabilities and English learners are being served by reviewing their subgroup performance as part of the overall review of academic performance and ensuring that schools are complying with state and federal laws and regulations for these student groups. Failure to comply with state and federal laws with respect to students with disabilities and English learners should inform both the renewal decision and contract conditions. See the renewal resource bank (Appendix, Exhibit 10) for resources on serving students with disabilities and English learners.

However, the renewal process is also a time to engage in a deeper discussion about how and whether a charter school is effectively serving all students, regardless of the renewal decision. Authorizers might engage in this conversation by using a tool or protocol for collecting and analyzing data and engaging in conversations with schools about how they are serving all student groups.

Body of Evidence: Annual Reviews, Accreditation Status, and Unified Improvement Plans

Authorizers are required to annually review a school’s performance throughout the charter term.¹⁰ These reviews are one component of the body of evidence used to assess a school’s renewal.¹¹ At a minimum, these annual reviews must include an assessment of the school’s progress in meeting the objectives identified in its plan and the “results of the charter school’s most recent annual financial audit.”¹² Once the review is complete, authorizers are required to provide written feedback that (1) includes the body of evidence the district board will consider in determining whether to renew, revoke, or nonrenew the school’s charter and (2) supports the negotiation of the renewal contract.¹³

Some authorizers use the school’s priority improvement or turnaround plans and accreditation status to inform the renewal decision. For example, if a charter school seeking renewal is in its second consecutive year implementing a turnaround plan, the school must provide

- its priority improvement or turnaround plan;
- a summary of the changes designed to improve the school’s performance;
- a description of the school’s progress executing these changes; and
- evidence that the school is “making sufficient improvement to attain a higher accreditation category within two school years or sooner.”¹⁴

Under the law, accreditation status is most significant when a school is executing a turnaround improvement plan.

“If the local board of education finds that the charter school’s evidence of improvement is not sufficient or if the charter school is required to implement a turnaround plan for a third consecutive school year, the local board of education may revoke the school's charter.”¹⁵

Several authorizers also incorporate schools' recent UIP into the renewal process as well. Reviewing the UIP plan allows authorizers to review the schools' identified root causes and planned improvement strategies and incorporate them into the school's body of evidence.

Renewal Application

Applications

The renewal application is part of the body of evidence. It provides the school with an opportunity to reflect on their progress and submit relevant documents and data that authorizer staff will use to inform their renewal recommendation. According to state statute, renewal applications must include

- a report on the school's progress in achieving the goals, objectives, pupil performance standards, content standards, targets for the measures used to determine the levels of attainment of the performance indicators, and other terms of the charter contract as well as the results achieved by the school's students on the statewide assessments;
- a financial statement that discloses the school's costs of administration, instruction, and other spending categories for the school in the format required by the SBE; and
- information related to the school's annual reviews.¹⁶

This package includes a sample renewal template that is divided into two parts: Part 1 Renewal Reflection and Part 2 Required Body of Evidence Submissions (Appendix, Exhibit 7). The application contents are aligned to CACSA's annual report template. Part 1 is designed as an opportunity for school leadership and governing boards to reflect on the school's progress by answering targeted questions for each evaluation component. Part 2 is a checklist of the documents that should be submitted for each evaluation component. Authorizer staff should modify both parts of the renewal application to support their particular context while ensuring compliance with required elements in law. Below is an excerpt of Part 1.

NACSA Best Practice

“A quality authorizer visits each school as appropriate and necessary for collecting data that cannot be obtained otherwise and in accordance with the contract while ensuring that the frequency, purposes, and methods of such visits respect school autonomy and avoid operational interference.”¹⁸

Site Visits

Site Visits

Site visits are designed as a tool for authorizers to observe charter school performance and may include classroom and governing board meeting observations, staff interviews, document review, and requests for additional data. Though not required, the information collected during site visits informs schools’ ongoing cycles of continuous improvement and assists authorizer staff in assessing performance and progress in meeting the goals stated in a school’s charter. Ideally, authorizers conduct site visits on an annual basis, though some review topics and criteria may not apply in a given year.

Authorizer staff should discuss the site visit process with school leadership as part of the renewal kick-off process. The table below articulates suggested steps for authorizers before, during, and after a site visit.

CACSA Site Visit Steps

TIME	STEPS
Prior to Site Visit	Prior to the site visit, the authorizer notifies the school of: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• the date on which the site visit will occur;• the time of both the board interview as well as the school leader interview;• the documents that the school is required to consolidate into one binder for document review (or folder or other location submitted online); and• the criteria according to which the authorizer will evaluate the school during the site visit.

Following Site Visit	Following the site visit, the authorizer will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Share the outcome of the site visit, namely the score the school received on each review topic as well as any next steps related to noncompliance/low scores, as needed, that the authorizer will take.

CACSA has developed a site visit protocol to guide authorizing staff in conducting effective site visits. The protocol provides more detail about the review topics and data collection methods (Appendix, Exhibit 9).

Renewal Evaluation

This section provides guidance for authorizer staff on the evaluation process that informs the district board’s renewal decision. State regulations require that renewal decisions are based on “thorough analyses of a comprehensive body of objective evidence defined by the performance framework in the charter contract.”¹⁹ The regulations also require that improved academic achievement “is the most important factor to consider when determining whether to revoke or not renew a charter.”²⁰

In addition to the regulations and statutory requirements, each authorizer should determine the evaluation components and the measures within each component that will inform their renewal recommendation. For example, the evaluation components from CACSA’s annual report template include: academic performance, board governance, legal and contractual compliance, and financial performance. These annual reviews, in addition to the body of evidence collected throughout the course of the charter contract, will inform the renewal evaluation.

Authorizers should use the body of evidence to assess the following key questions:

- Academic Performance: Is the school’s education program success?
- Board Governance: Is the school operating and governed effectively?
- Legal and Contractual Compliance: How has the school ensured compliance with federal law, state law, and the school’s charter contract?
- Financial Performance: Is the school financially solvent/viable?

In Practice: Public Comment Period

While not required, some Colorado authorizers hold a public comment period for renewal decisions. This public comment period may strengthen the community and the school’s relationship with the district.

After reviewing the body of evidence, authorizers may want to consider other factors, including those that influence the quality of school choice options within the larger community. Other factors that authorizers may want to consider include the following:²¹

- level of community support;
- performance of other school options in the geographic area;
- progress towards closing the achievement gap;
- availability of other schools of choice or similar models;

- unique programmatic offerings;
- proximity to next performance rating;
- network capacity; and
- enrollment relative to program capacity.

When reviewing these evaluation components and other factors, authorizing staff should also consider the statutory reasons for nonrenewal. These are as follows:

- “Committed a material violation of any of the conditions, standards, or procedures set forth in the charter contract;
- Failed to meet or make adequate progress toward achievement of the goals, objectives, content standards, pupil performance standards, targets for the measures used to determine the levels of attainment of the performance indicators, applicable federal requirements, or other terms identified in the charter contract;
- Failed to meet generally accepted standards of fiscal management; or
- Violated any provision of law from which the charter school was not specifically exempted.”²²

Summative Report

A best practice is for authorizers to provide a report that summarizes the school’s performance over the charter term and the likelihood the school will be renewed in advance of the board’s renewal decision. This practice also includes providing an opportunity for the school to both respond to the report, “correct the record,” and submit new information on its performance, if necessary. This practice is aligned with NACSA’s standards and principles. Some authorizers in the state currently provide this opportunity, while others provide the schools with an opportunity to address questions or issues raised in the report. The Appendix, Exhibit 3 includes two sample templates for authorizer staff to summarize their evaluation of schools’ renewal applications and the body of evidence. The first is a summative report template for staff recommendations and areas of concern, the second is a template to capture the summative domain ratings based on CACSA’s annual report template.

Developing a Board Recommendation/Report

Authorizing staff must submit a written report summarizing their renewal evaluation, and some authorizing staff may include a recommendation to renew or nonrenew the school as well. Authorizers vary in terms of what type of report and accompanying data they provide to the district board. Authorizers should consider providing a summary document as well as a more detailed summary analysis of each of the evaluation components, particularly any issues with serving specific student populations. The evaluation may include consideration of a school's turnaround plan and accreditation status if relevant. The report is due to the district board and charter school at least 15 days before the board is scheduled to make its decision.²³ A sample recommendation memo is included in the Appendix, Exhibit 8.

In Practice: DACs and Charter Renewals

State law does not require DAC involvement in charter renewals. Some authorizers, however, include DAC recommendations in the renewal materials submitted to district boards in advance of renewal decisions.

COVID-19 Impact

As a result of COVID-19, schools have modified their instructional models in real-time to provide students with technology for remote learning and to support students and families with emotional and physical health challenges during this time. Students have also had inconsistent learning experiences and access to technology during remote instruction, even within the same school. Given these ongoing challenges, CACSA recommends that authorizers consider these unique circumstances as well as expand the body of evidence to assess charter schools' progress in meeting goals and performance expectations when evaluating schools' performance during the 2019–20 and 2020–21 school years and possibly beyond.

Authorizers will lack state assessment data for the 2019–20 school year, and there are some challenges in considering assessment data for the 2020–21 school year. Authorizers may want to review and consider which students participated in state tests during the 2020–21 school year to understand how representative they are of the total population of students. In addition, assessment conditions may not have been standardized for all students. Finally, as mentioned previously, students may have had inconsistent access to instruction.

To address these gaps and challenges with state standardized assessments, authorizers may want to use additional academic data to assess performance during the renewal process. One approach authorizers could take is to provide a list of the types of data schools can use to provide evidence of academic performance in the 2019–20 and 2020–21 school years and include specific examples. These data could be used to support the school's performance trajectory and would complement the state assessment data. Authorizers' lists may include formative and summative assessments, grades, and course completion for high school students.

²³ C.R.S. § 22-30.5-110(4.5)(a).

Another approach is to provide guidance about the characteristics of assessments that should be used. For example, assessments should assess grade-level standards and represent the learning of a significant portion of students. An example from Denver Public Schools (DPS) below provides language the authorizing office has used to provide additional guidance to schools on what assessment data may be considered. Authorizers may also want to consider requiring schools to only use assessments used in prior years to demonstrate performance trends. Lastly, authorizers are encouraged to work with each school to agree on the academic measures for assessing performance in the 2019–20 and 2020–21 school years based on the authorizer’s guidance.

In addition, site visits provide an important source of qualitative data for renewal decision-making. Authorizers that conducted virtual site visits during the 2019–20 and 2020–21 school years should use these findings to confirm previous trends and inform the renewal process. Authorizers that didn’t conduct annual site visits, may want to conduct annual visits during the years after the COVID closures to provide additional data to inform renewal decisions. Because this document is being produced during a transitional time, it is likely that guidance about how to handle these gaps in data will evolve.

Finally, NACSA’s 2021 Supplemental Renewal Guidance provides guidance for examining four core areas of a school’s effectiveness during the pandemic years—(1) student impact, (2) family partnerships and community engagement, (3) quality of school redesign during COVID, and (4) evaluating and using internal assessments. Using qualitative and quantitative data in these key areas can complement existing data sources and provide a more holistic view of a school’s performance.²⁴

In Practice: Assessment Guidance from DPS

“Please note that we will put more emphasis on data that:

provides evidence of a connection to grade-level standards or expectations (i.e., nationally normed or used in 2019 District SPF);

provides clarity on what was assessed through vendor documentation or other summaries/samples of assessed content (See Appendix A);

allows for comparisons across schools;

represents the learning of a significant portion of students at a school and is disaggregated to understand how specific groups of students performed;

displays data in a manner that shows how all students performed, using status and growth calculations as appropriate; and utilizes vendor created reports (preferred), when possible.”

— Denver Public Schools, Charter Renewal Application: Part B

There may also be impacts from COVID on financial performance as well as legal and contractual compliance. A couple of factors may affect financial performance. Schools may have fallen short of enrollment targets during the pandemic, affecting revenue targets. Authorizing staff should provide some flexibility and consider trends before and after those years. There may also be additional dollars from federal stimulus funds that can improve schools' financial situations. In terms of legal and contractual compliance, there may have been emergency situations that prevented schools from submitting reports on time during the COVID years. Again, flexibility with those due dates is warranted.

Options Short of Nonrenewal

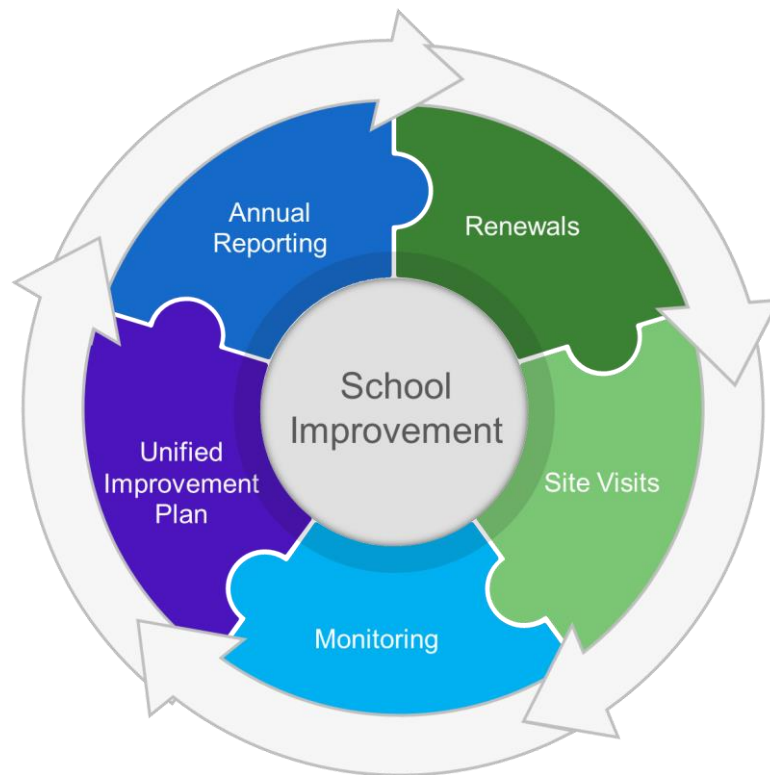

This section discusses options short of nonrenewal decisions that, when appropriate, support continuous improvement. These options give authorizers tools to build the capacity of schools that need improvement but are unlikely to be closed or do not warrant closure. They are particularly important during and after the COVID pandemic since it is likely that fewer schools will be nonrenewed during this time. The section also discusses how authorizers may (1) engage with schools about performance concerns, inform continuous improvement efforts, and identify areas where authorizers can support schools; (2) implement mutually agreed-upon conditions that support school improvement; and (3) differentiate charter renewal contract lengths based on the school's performance.

Continuous Improvement and Conditions

One of the primary purposes of the annual review and renewal process is to support schools in continuous reflection and improvement; therefore, the data collected as part of the body of evidence can be used to support schools and authorizers in this process. In addition, authorizers can use the UIP process to support school improvement. All schools are required to develop an annual improvement plan using the UIP template developed by the CDE. This document can be the foundation for an ongoing conversation about the school's strengths and areas for improvement and the strategies the school intends to implement to address the areas for improvement. Using the UIP for this function may reduce the burden on schools that otherwise would have created a second improvement plan based on the renewal alone. For more information about the unified improvement planning process, see here.

One way to codify improvement strategies that are critical to improving school performance is to incorporate them into the renewal contract as conditions. Colorado law supports renewing charter contracts with mutually agreed-upon renewal contract conditions.²⁵ These conditions allow an authorizer to renew a school that demonstrates potential to improve but isn't meeting standards at the time of renewal. For example, a renewal contract may specify that a school must improve its accreditation status. Conditions may also address specific weaknesses the authorizer identifies, such as increasing reading proficiency or replacing the board chair of a governing board that has been ineffective.

Differential Charter Renewal Contract Lengths

Colorado statute does not specify the length of the renewal contract, thereby permitting differential contract lengths. The benefit of differential contract lengths is that the length of a contract can vary based on the performance of a school. Therefore, in cases where a school’s performance doesn’t merit a full-length renewal, but the school has potential for improvement, the authorizing staff may recommend a two- or three-year renewal contract. A two- or three-year contract provides for another in-depth evaluation on a shorter timeline and may also incorporate conditions, as discussed in the prior section. Authorizers can develop guidance to inform their recommendations to the board about differential renewal contracts. The following rubric offers one option for guiding decision-making about contract lengths and conditions. To review the measures that are included in each of the domains, see the CACSA Annual Report in the Appendix, Exhibit 5.

Bringing it All Together: Conditions and Contract Length

While this rubric provides one example of how authorizing staff might think about contract terms and conditions, professional judgement is a critical ingredient for making these decisions, which is why the rubric offers different contract options for schools with the same ratings. Authorizing staff should have an in-depth understanding of the challenges facing each school by reviewing the body of evidence and using these data to inform the contract terms and conditions. For example, in the rubric below, there may be a school that was not in good standing based on a review of all domains for three years in a row, but the noncompliance was related to poor board performance and there has been a new board in place for two years. In this case an authorizer may decide that conditions are no longer necessary and a three-year contract with no conditions is warranted.

Another circumstance to consider is for schools that have long contract terms. First, schools that have 15-year terms should still receive a high stakes review every five years. Second, at renewal, another long-term contract is not recommended. Five-year terms provide for better accountability and reflect national best practices. Authorizing staff should consider a five-year renewal term, even if the school initially had a 15-year contract. In general, CACSA does not recommend contract terms longer than five years to ensure sufficient accountability and oversight for all schools.

Decision-Making

Board Consideration of Report/Recommendation

The renewal report and/or recommendation will be transmitted to the board by the authorizing staff or superintendent. The board’s renewal determinations must be (1) grounded in the body of evidence supplied during the renewal and (2) made by resolution by February first of the year in which the school’s contract expires.²⁶ The board will consider the report/and or recommendation and deliberate on the renewal decision in a public meeting. This forum may include a presentation by the authorizing staff or superintendent, a presentation by the school, or other information to inform the board. At the end of the deliberation, the board will make a determination and notably may have particular concerns that they wish to be the subject of negotiation for the renewal contract, for instance by including conditions. If the board decides not to renew the charter, it must state its reasons for the nonrenewal.²⁷

Contract Negotiations
and Execution

Renewal Contracts

Once a district board approves a school’s renewal application, the authorizer staff and the school’s governing board are charged with negotiating the conditions of the renewal contract. This step affords the time and opportunity for the parties to discuss the renewal contract terms, conditions, and any necessary improvement supports. Many authorizers have a standard contract, so the areas for negotiation are limited. CACSA is also developing a model contract that will be available as a resource. While there is not a statutorily required timeline for finalizing a renewal contract, it is prudent to complete it within 60-90 days. This timeline may be specified in the district’s charter policy.

Negotiating renewal contracts can become contentious when unilateral conditions are imposed, and this is frequently the subject of appeals to SBE. Authorizers are encouraged to negotiate with schools in good faith on renewal terms and conditions that target necessary change and are agreeable to both parties prior to the renewal resolution. Doing so fosters collaborative decision-making that identifies the effective conditions that will support the school’s performance moving forward and is a way to mitigate renewal appeals. Boards considering conditions should consult their legal counsel prior to passing a renewal resolution.

Appeals

Under state law, charter schools can appeal decisions made by local boards of education to the SBE that either (1) revoke or nonrenew its charter or (2) impose unilateral conditions.²⁸ A school must first submit a notice of appeal that describes the issues to the district and the SBE within 30 days of the initial decision.²⁹ Within 60 days after receiving the notice of appeal, the SBE must render its decision at a public hearing. If the SBE decides that the district board’s decision is not in the best interests of students, the school district, or the community, it must remand (or return) the initial decision back to the district board with recommendations for reconsideration, which can lead to two outcomes. If the district board upholds its initial decision — either to revoke, nonrenew, or impose unilateral conditions — the school can submit a second appeal to the SBE within 30 days after the district board’s decision. Also, if the district board decides not to include unilateral conditions, the school and authorizer staff can proceed with finalizing the renewal contract within 90 days of SBE's remand.³⁰

Nonstandard Renewal Situations

There are a variety of nonstandard renewal situations that warrant special considerations. These situations include school mergers, schools transitioning authorizers or Charter Management Organizations (CMOs), and/or schools dividing into two separate schools at the time of renewal. Authorizers should incorporate these scenarios into their renewal process by developing specific questions and review criteria related to these circumstances. For example, for a school that is joining a new CMO, the authorizer should add questions about the new CMO's capacity. Ultimately, these scenarios add one additional variable for the authorizer to consider as part of the body of evidence.

Exhibit 2: Excerpt of Standards for Charter Schools and Charter School Authorizers

Below are the introductory sections of the Colorado Standards for Charter Schools and Charter School Authorizers. To access the full standards, see here.

“The Charter Authorizer maintains high standards by doing the following:

- Setting high standards for approving charter applicants;
- Maintaining high standards for the schools it oversees;
- Effectively cultivating quality charter schools that meet identified educational needs;
- Overseeing charter schools that, over time, meet the performance standards and targets set forth in their charter contracts on a range of measures and metrics; and
- Closing schools that fail to meet standards and targets set forth in law and by contract.

The Charter School Authorizer upholds school autonomy by doing the following:

- Honoring and preserving innovations and core autonomies crucial to school success, including governing board independence from the authorizer, personnel, school vision and culture, instructional programming, design, and use of time, and budgeting;
- Assuming responsibility not for the success or failure of individual schools but for holding schools accountable for their performance;
- Minimizing administrative and compliance burdens on schools; and
- Focusing on holding schools accountable for outcomes rather than processes.

The Charter School Authorizer protects student and public interests by doing the following:

- Making the well-being and interests of students the fundamental value informing all the authorizer’s actions and decisions;
- Holding schools accountable for fulfilling fundamental public education obligations to all students, including providing nonselective, nondiscriminatory access to all eligible students; fair treatment for all students in admissions and disciplinary actions; and appropriate services for all students in accordance with law. Specifically, the Charter School Authorizer does not engage in or adopt discriminatory recruiting or marketing policies or practices, adopts enrollment practices that ensure that enrollment decisions are nondiscriminatory and consistent with the best interests of the student applicant, and develops systems to ensure that services are delivered to students with disabilities as required by federal and state law;

- Holding schools accountable for fulfilling fundamental obligations to the public, including providing sound governance, management, and stewardship of public funds; and public information and operational transparency in accordance with the law;
- Ensuring the following in its own work: ethical conduct; focus on the mission of chartering high-quality schools; clarity, consistency, and public transparency in authorizing policies, practices, and decisions; effective and efficient public stewardship; and compliance with applicable laws and regulations; and
- Supporting parents and students in being well-informed about the quality of education provided by charter schools.”⁴³

* Charter schools may request waivers from specified areas of the statute after the initial charter contract is executed. This flexibility is intended to provide charters with the autonomy to fully implement the educational plan outlined in the school's contract with the authorizing district. Charter school waiver requests must meet the requirements set forth in the CSA (C.R.S. § 22-30.5-101). Colorado law allows districts to request waivers from state statutes and rules. These waivers can apply to the entire district or individual schools within the district, "if the waivers will enhance educational opportunity and quality" (C.R.S. § 22-2-117(1)(a)).

 Charter contract modifications must be approved by the district board and school's governing board (C.R.S. § 22-30.5-105(4)). Schools intending to request contract modifications during the renewal process should include a description of this request when they submit Part 2 of the Renewal Application.

Assessment*	The school does not have a system to administer interim assessments or use the data to inform instruction and identify students in need of support.	The school utilizes multiple grade-level appropriate assessments that were chosen based on research and the needs of a particular student population. There is a clear schedule and protocol for data analysis and data is used to identify students for remediation or acceleration.	All criteria for partially meets expectations plus: There is a clear process for ensuring assessments are aligned with curriculum, standards, and performance goals. Academic Intervention and Acceleration*	The school provides limited supports for students who are struggling academically or in need of acceleration. The RTI process is not systematically structured to assist all learners in need of intervention.	Tiered interventions are in place to provide needed additional academic and behavior supports. Although the MTSS/RTI process is in place and used by some teachers, the MTSS/RTI process is unclear to some.
